From my window this morning I can see the sun peeping through. The birds are beginning to believe that the spring might at last be coming. I do hope so as it has been a long winter for us all. ***
The March meeting went very well according to those present. Unfortunately I was unable to attend and am very disappointed to have missed what appears to be a very interesting evening. A presentation given by Terry Cocking. of a DVD - Photographs on screen of Chesterfield in the past by the late George Martin.

I do make an apology to those present as the venue on the evening let us down as the heating failed to come on at its set time. The venue have tendered their apologies to members and visitors.

The cold however did not spoil what turned out to be a meeting enjoyed by all. ***

An Introduction to Paleography.

How many of us have struggled with those old manuscripts, wills and conveyancing documents etc?

The old hand writing of yesteryear? As beautiful as it is, it can be laborious trying to decipher them.

Dominic is going to be walking us through the art of Paleography; The reading of ancient and old documents.

I love this recipe for Mince Pies below:
For six Minst Pyes of a Indifferent biggnesse.

Project in progress:

The Churches and War memorial in the Scarsdale 100 area

Neil is still hoping to receive more photographs from you.

You send the photos and Neil will do the rest.

The response to his request has been quite slow, but now the weather is finally improving then hopefully we can all get clicking away with our cameras!

I must say we have quite enjoyed making the effort. Quite a peaceful project, away from hustle and bustle of our busy lives.
